“ My sweet grandmother, there are so many memories so many life events. I could sit here and write for hours. I remember growing up being so close so spoiled by my grandmother! Her heart was so beautiful and big! She started me on my love for glitter. She loved sparkles so much we always would find the best glittery make up and sprays. The Christmas days we would all go and eat at my aunt char's house i loved going there spending quality time with my gma while she would wash the dishes id help just me and her. All the special breakfast-lunch days with my mother and my grandmother. They had such a special bond every week atleast once a week they would eat-shop together or sometimes just eat bc gma wouldnt feel up to walking the mall❤️ so many special memories i will cherish forever. My grandmother taught me that life is precious tomorrow is never promised and i will hold those special moments i shared with her close to my heart forever. All the grandparents days at my elementary school she made sure to come! She always loved me wearing hats really pretty fancy hats and dresses. She would take me to buy one every year when i was young. She was such a diva about her self care she taught me to be the way i am today about treating myself to getting my hair and nails done. I could go on forever but ill end this with my heart is absolutely crushed. I do know you are no longer suffering so im happy about that. I will love your forever and always grandma❤️
