“ I met Henry on my vacation in San Francisco in June of 2017. We were both staying at the same bed and breakfast, and ironically, met over breakfast in the kitchen. I was talking with another guest, and Henry joined the conversation. I offered to show my two new acquaintances the town, and I did. We had a wonderful time. Henry and I decided to stay in touch after I went back home. My spouse and I visited Henry several times, and enjoyed him showing us around his part of Maryland. Our times together ranged from taking him out for dinner, or having me cooked dinner in his home, and when he was too ill to clean his apartment, my better half and I helped out it was our pleasure. He was a dear, sweet man with a kind heart. He will be missed. Bless his soul to Heaven.
