

Jennifer Candy Webster

January 20, 1983 - September 1, 2023

Jennifer C. Webster, also known as "Coop," was born on January 20, 1983, in New York, to her loving mother, Haldina Cooper. After a courageous six-year battle with breast cancer, Jennifer transcended to heaven.

Jennifer was a woman of humor, assertiveness, and unwavering honesty. She received her education in Wycomico County Public Schools in Salisbury, MD, and went on to earn her BS in Psychology from Morgan State University in 2006.

On September 13, 2015, Jennifer married the love of her life, Emmanuel, and together they were blessed with two beautiful children, Mason and Morgan Webster.

Jennifer found immense joy in spending quality time with her devoted husband, playing with her beloved children, and creating cherished memories with close family and friends. She had a passion for cooking, exploring new places through travel, indulging in some retail therapy, and watching crime-related TV shows. Christmas was a special time for Jennifer, and she cherished every moment of the holiday season.

Jennifer is reunited with her sister, Michelle N. Stanley, and her grandfather, Harold L. Cooper in the afterlife. She is survived by her loving husband, Emmanuel T. Webster, and their two children, Mason T. Webster and Morgan N. Webster, all residing in Bowie, MD. Jennifer is also survived by her mother, Haldina Cooper of Cambridge, MD, her grandmother Rosalee Banks of Cambridge, MD, her sister LaToya Sharp, and her extended family, including her beloved parents-in-love, Cecily and Marvin Johnson, Dave and Emma Webster, and her brother-in-love, David Webster, and Eli Webster.

Jennifer's parting message to all is a testament to her strength and resilience: "We gave it one hell of a fight, but I just ran out of time." She will forever remain in our hearts as a beacon of courage and love.
