“ John was a smart, solid, humble, loyal, first class person. I am sure he did a super job at National Security Agency for 40 years but we would never know because he never bragged and he was paranoid about secrecy. He was a good basketball player and I loved the "dunk" basketball games we would play in their driveway with the lower net. I know he totally enjoyed following his son's success in figure skating and he should have. I am sorry, we never saw him after he retired as he stayed primarily only in Maryland and didn't always reply. It would have been nice to get him to Boston for the BC game group I organized each year from Bishop Kearney HS.
