“ Joe was our insurance agent for many years, and was a very special man to us! I was so shocked on his passing, and very sad to add. With a heavy heart, I wish his family the very best and send hugs and prayers! RIP Joe you will surely be missed! Tommy & Rose Goldsborough T.E.G. Custom Homes, LLC

“ A little bit about my Dad. He was drafted professionally out of high school by the Colt 45s who later became the Houston Astros. He declined the offer at the time and married my mother before joining the Military. They were married for 53 years and had two sons. My brother Michael and Me. My father got into playing fast pitch and slow pitch softball for many years where his moon shot homeruns were a spectacle to see every time he got up to the plate. But God knows if you played with him my dad always had something to say about you, not always in the most positive of ways. Sadly I think it had something to do with a rare issue that he had which we all learned later in life especially here at the end. He finally got inducted into the National Softball Hall of Fame in Richmond Virginia and to know my Dad besides his Military Service was what he always wanted because God knows he would play 7 days a week traveling the United States. My trips with him in the winter time to Florida where i grew up as the bat boys for most of his teams were Priceless. We always had that bond of sports. Towards the end my Dads health really started to decline rapidly. I want to say Thank U from the bottom of my heart to North Arundel Hospital in Glen Burnie and Northwest Hospital in Randallstown Hospice for taking care of him during his last few weeks here on Earth and I look forward to him being buried at Arlington National Cemetary because he was always proud to be a 1st Sgt in the Army. We are going to spread a little bit of his ashes at Dunkirk Park in the right handed batters box because that is where I remember as a kid most of his Epic homeruns taking place. Plus he has crossed home plate for the last time. God Speed Dad. Your Safe at Home
