“ Over the past few days I have been remembering so many little things about Aunt Lynn. All of the sleepovers. What a terrible cook she was, so it was such a treat to order out on weekends with Aunt Lynn. On Christmas mornings Aunt Lynn arriving at my parents' house still in her pajamas because she wanted to be there for presents. What a hard worker she was, working long hours in the nursing home to take care of people. She will be missed in hundreds of memories of small moments.

“ When I was a little girl Lynn was just a baby. Mom took the dress from my walking doll and put it on Lynn. She was always a tiny little thing. As years go by you forget and the memory turns to laughter. When I told Lynny Pooh this story a few years ago she batted her big beautiful eyes and just laughed. Lynn had a kind heart, all she ever wanted was to be loved. Your much older sister Peg 💔
