“ I only knew her from her group of friends on “x” for a short while. What I do know is that she was a joy to talk to. I could see her heart in the messages she left and a wonderful friend. Thank you Linda for becoming my friend. You are missed very much. Rest in Peace.

“ I never met Linda in person. She graced my life online for over a decade thru a shared love of gaming, especially Wizard101. Linda's support of players was consistent and meaningful. She touched the lives of many, of all ages, done only through chat in-game and via social media. It is difficult to describe the impact Linda had on others and the sheer number of people she helped. Hundreds/over a thousand throughout her extensive online presence. The gaming world lost a bright treasure but I know her heart, her kindness, her legacy will continue by those she supported. Linda and I had similar interests in social activism and a love of nature. I live at a large apt complex, disabled, with no ability to garden. Linda shared her garden with me and others online. I loved her garden. Linda was so proud of her husband's work to keep it beautiful. Linda understood chronic pain and long term illness. Her kind heart and loving spirit helped me so much during flare-ups of pain or illness. I can't imagine how I could of gotten thru the isolation and surrealness of the pandemic without her. She had a loving family. I was alone. My heart aches for her family and friends. I love Linda so much. I don't really have the words that my heart wants to say. Linda would understand and would be comforting me with \"it's ok, I understand\". And, I would know she really did understand and it really was ok. 🌸 with love and gratitude, Tara Windwalker.
