“ My mother Cindy was a great woman. Her life was never easy, and nothing was ever given to her. Instead she fought hard to continue to be the best mother she could be for us, all the way up until the day she passed. She was always there for her children, her daughter especially, and would help to the furthest extent possible without caring for herself. She was beautiful, caring, and loving to her family. I will be forever grateful that I was lucky enough to have her as a mother, and wish I could talk to her again to let her know that. I regret not spending more time with her over the last several months of her life. And it will be something I regret for the rest of my life. I hope to see her again one day, and will love and remember her every day until then. I love you mom.
