“ I met Michelle in seventh grade at Ridley South, and we became friends. She was so creative and kind. I remember the short story she wrote, inspired by the Door's Riders on the Storm. Michelle once embroidered the legs of my jeans with flowers! I lost track of her after we graduated from high school, but every once in a while I would run into her at the supermarket. When I joined Facebook, she was one of my friends that I always tried to find. My condolences to her family.
