“ One of the things I remember my dad taught me was how to go crabbing. On the weekend we would go off on his motorboat, the Fulabul. Once we found our spot near some pilings, he would patiently tie chicken nexks to the line and then drop them over the side of the boat. Then we would wait for the crabs. I remember some old hat he put on my head, a Papst Blue Ribbon hat someone made for him. There we would sit on the Chesapeake Bay, in silence, as waves gently rocked the boat and we waited for crabs.
