“ My prayers and condolences go out to your family. No one should have to deal with the loss of someone so young. I know there is not much that can be said to bring any comfort in a situation like this but you are all in my thoughts and prayers. Fly high my friend... see you on the other side.

“ We never had a chance to grow up together, but i can remember coming to maryland to visit and playing video games for hours. When i was 15 ritchie me to live with us and we became close. And once again our favorite thing to do together was play video games we would play all day and all night until mom would kick us off. And it Didnt matter what game it was he would always play the game i wanted to play even if he was tried of that particular one and wanted to play something else. My brother made me happy. I was sneaking around to smoke cigarettes and he caught but he never told in fact he would buy menthol cigarettes, even though he Didnt like them, because i like them. He taught me how to wrestle, but he won most of the time. I remember one time when our cat mystik had jumped up and knocked the hamster cage off the bookshelf and was chasing the hamster around the house and he was laughing at me while i was trying to catch them. When he left to go back to maryland we had made a mastermind plan to sneak our cat onto a greyhound bus by stuffing him into a suitcase so that i could go with him, and we could bring our cat with us. Lets just say our plan failed. Ive missed my brother for so long and now hes gone. And for me to get the chance to tell him that ive missed him and that i love him and to hear that he felt the same way means more to me than anyone can imagine. My brother will forever be in my heart and on my mind i love him dearly and neither life or death will change what we shared.

“ Though I didn't have the privilege of meeting you before you left Earth way too soon, you left a void in your momma's heart that will never be filled by anything else. That place in her heart will always be reserved for you and she will treasure that place forever. Thank you for wanting to be in her arms and allowing her the honor to hold you as you passed from this life. You made her last memories of your life so precious and she is so thankful for that past beautiful gift to her.
